

Movies Showed Girls
How to Steal Furs;
Pawnbroker Helped

Loan Agent Told Them to Bring More of Their Loot to Him.

If the rules of etiquette are not inexorable, it may yet be time to save two fresh-faced little girls who at Headquarters to-day snatched out their very hearts under the shame of arrest for theft. They are Anita Martish, who lives at No. 26 Avenue A, and Katherine Cullen of No. 192 Waverly place; both are just seventeen.

Yesterday afternoon they were arrested in the Fourteenth Street Store as they were walking away with a fur coat they had lifted from a rack. Detectives had been on the lookout for these demure little misses, for two within the week for coats, valued at $10 and $12, had been stolen from the Simpson Crawford Company on Sixth avenue. In each instance the coats had been snatched after two slender little girls, with the faces of cherubs, had noticed wandering about the cloak department.

A night in jail brought unknown terrors to the hearts of Anita and Katherine, and this morning when Capt. Jimmy Dunn at Headquarters put an arm about each and said, "Now, tell me all about it," their stories tumbled from their lips fast as their tears flowed.

They had both worked during the Christmas holiday rush, one as packer in a department store, the other in a candy store; and when the holidays were over they were without positions. Also neither had a nickel in her purse to bless herself with. They wanted to go to the "movies," so last Thursday Katherine pawned a cheap set of furs she had received for Christmas. She got $2 for the furs and that gave a whole day's entertainment up and down the flashy row of Fourteenth street.

HAD NO MORE MONEY, SO THEY STOLE.

"And then last Monday," sobbed Katherine, "we had no more money and I had seen in the 'movies' how easy it was to steal things from stores, so we went to Simpson Crawford's and just took a wonderful fur coat off the rack and walked out with it. We went to a pawnshop and the man gave us $15 for the coat. And he said:

"You look like clever little girls. When do you do this again bring the stuff to me."

"So it was so easy we did it again in the same store on Wednesday and took the coat to the same pawnbroker. And we tried to take another yesterday; but we were caught. And now our mothers will know that we are thieves and we might as well be dead."

When the girls went to Jefferson Market Court they made an affidavit upon which the detectives could go out and arrest the kind pawnbroker who had helped the two little girls to realize on their stolen goods.

APPOINTS HIS FRIEND TO MARRY IN HIS STEAD.

Paterson Man Unable to Go to Holland, but His Proxy Bride Will Soon Arrive

Paterson, N. J., Jan. 4, 1913. Known all over by these presents that I, William F. Dumoulin, of No. 360 North Ninth street, Paterson, U. S. A., do hereby make, constitute and appoint Hendrik Kneifert of No. 35 Korte Molen street, The Hague, the Netherlands, my true, sufficient and lawful attorney, for me and in my name to marry Maria H. Van der Veen of No. 2 Helmer street, The Hague, the Netherlands, in the same manner and form as I might do if I were personally present."

The only other detail lacking in order that this may be more intelligible to you is that when Dumoulin lived in Holland he had not enough money to marry his old sweetheart. Recently he got it and he wrote her to come over. Her mother took charge of the matter and replied by letter that Maria could not leave her home until she was married. Business prevents Dumoulin from making the trip, so his friend Kneifert will fill in temporarily and bring the young woman, who is a high school teacher, to this country.

"The Precious Lives of Little Children"

Are often sacrificed through carelessness. Children should be taught at an early age to rinse the mouth thoroughly morning and night with "ODOL." The germ of Diphtheria is ever a deadly menace to the lives of children. It enters through the mouth.

The constant use of "ODOL" as a mouthwash is the SAFEGUARD that renders a child practically immune from attack.

Please to the taste and delightfully refreshing, "ODOL" will also harden the gums and keep the teeth in a healthy condition.

There is nothing "just as good" as "ODOL."
